

IAHR Label

for Water Training and Education

What is the IAHR label?

A new labelling system aimed that acknowledges the quality of education and training programmes tailored for the water sector

Context

Urgent action and skilled water professionals are crucial for achieving SDG 6. Prioritising their education and training benefits not only SDG 6 but also addresses climate change, food security, biodiversity, energy transition, and social development.

Objectives

Recognise institutions promoting and implementing excellence in training and education programmes for competent and skillful professionals in the water sector.

Advantages

- Public confidence statement from an independent global water organisation.
- Recognition of quality education and training programmes for the water sector.
- Alignment of education with water professionals' needs.
- Assurance that academic awards meet international standards.

Who can apply

Any institution or organisation providing vocational training, BSc, MSc and PhD programmes focusing on water-related education and training.

How to apply?

START

1. Fill in the self-assessment report and a cover page explaining for which programme this request is submitted.
2. Submit the report to the labelling secretariat at label@iahr.org

Access the full brochure

