

IAHR IWHR Beijing Young Professionals Network

Our vision and mission

IAHR IWHR YPN established was established on April 12, 2011. During the period of more than twelve years, the executive committees and members have been committed to the development of IAHR IWHR YPN. On one hand, we continue to create more learning opportunities for members, and on the other hand, we have also organized some activities to strengthen the cohesion. Currently, there are 509 members of IAHR IWHR YPN, covering master students, doctoral students and some young professionals.

IAHR IWHR YPN is committed to providing a good communication platform, enabling students to broaden horizons, increase communications and show themselves among graduate students, various universities and on the international stage. We are committed to making efforts for the majority of young professionals to improve their scientific research and keep up with the frontiers and development trends of their professional areas.

Main goals and key objectives

In order to make participants more active. So the main objective is to provide services that they are interested in, such as communication activities and academic guidance for graduate students and young professionals, combining the discipline characteristics and training goals of IWHR.
